

Bruce Lee

Gay Jewish Actor who Faked his Death

by Anon

January 3, 2023

The other night, I was eating dinner and reading through Sum Ting Wong's article on the Tiananmen Square Massacre.

The subject wasn't super-interesting to me (not a big fan of history), but this caught my eye (page 9):

somehow can't shore up the border to keep them from escaping? I assume Hong Kong has always been a Chinese asset, being a useful foil whenever state agents and high-profile figures need a place to disappear after faking an arrest or a death. More likely Hong Kong is a Hanseatic seaport, or Phoenician center, like City of London.

The green-highlighted part, that is, which I assume is Miles's interjection.

And, actually, one more thing, as well (page 5):

So the students were on to them! It gets better when we look at the individual actors behind the BAAF, especially its leader Han Dongfang.

Already looks Western and half-Jewish, doesn't he, with that long face? We know very little

Again, the green-highlighted part, which I assume is Miles interjecting again: the familiar refrain of the chief actors (pun intended) in Big Events the world over and of the Vanguard of every debasing, so-called Progressive movement being Phoenician, as well as one hallmark of that being the long face and characteristic nose.

More "Gay Jewish Actors," as he succinctly puts it.

That got me curious and searching online.

Quite quickly, and unexpectedly, by means of associations of curious interests and personal experiences, I hit on what I'm sharing here. Within a minute or two, I finally hit something with "wealthy Ho family Hong Kong". Guess what came up? A link to Wikipedia, on the "Four Big Families of Hong Kong."

The founders of the original four families are Li Sek-peng (李石朋), Robert Ho Tung (何東), Hui Oi-chow (許愛周) and Lo Cheung-shiu (羅長筆).^[1] Of these families, the Lis and the Hos and their descendants are the two most recognized by regular Hong Kong citizens today.^[1]

Note that we have the Lis/Lees and the Hos.

Notably, the article says these Four are "four business families who historically rose to prominence and became influential in Hong Kong. In order of influence, they are Li, Ho, Lo, and Hui."

Also, just taking quick excerpts from the sections below on the Lis and Hos (screen-capped and included for posterity), among the "notable" Lis we have: a founder of the Bank of East Asia; a chairman of the same bank; top members of universities and high-ups in government; and a founder and chairman of the Hong Kong Stock Exchange.

Li family notables [edit]

Main article: Li Shek-pang family

Li Shek-pang (李石朋, 1863–1916) also known as Li Pui-choi (李佩材) – Originally from Guangdong

- Li Koon-chun (李冠春, 1887–1966) – Founder of Bank of East Asia, Director of Tung Wah Group of Hospitals and Po Leung Kuk^[3]
- Li Fook-shu (李福樹, 1912–95) – Council member of Chinese University of Hong Kong^[4]
 - David Li (李國寶, 1939–) – Chairman, Bank of East Asia,^[5] Member of LegCo, ExCo, and HK Basic Law Drafting Committee
 - Arthur Li (李國章, 1945–) – Hong Kong Secretary for Education & Manpower (2002–2007), ExCo Member, CPPC Delegate, Council member of the University of Hong Kong
 - Jeanette Chi-duen, Li
 - Jennifer Chi-ping, Li
- Ronald Li (李福兆, 1929–2014) – Founder & Chairman of Stock Exchange of Hong Kong^[6]
- Li Tse-fong (李子方, 1891–1953)
 - Li Fook-kow (李福逵, 1922–2011) Hong Kong Secretary for Home Affairs (1977–1980)

I forget where he did it, but you may remember that Miles has pointed out that, basically, Li/Lee = Levi/Levy = Phoenicians, as the connections to finance imply, and I think Lestrade brought up in one of his "Pacific Theater" articles: namely, big-time Jewish/Phoenician strongholds in Japan and East Asia, normally passed over in silence in Mainstream Histories.

Ok, yeah, here's the link to the article.

And here are a couple choice nugs, relevant to what I'm getting to.

One....

“Eighteen Jews fled from Europe to Otopol Station (now Zabaykalsk Station) on the Trans-Siberian Railway, located on the border between the Soviet Union and Manchuria. The Manchurian government refused to accept them for fear of worsening relations with Germany. Major General Kiichiro Higuchi, who was consulted by Abraham Kaufman, the head of the Far Eastern Jewish Association, saw the situation and together with his subordinates arranged for food, clothing, fuel to survive the cold, medical care, and a route to Shanghai for the Jews.

This route was called the "Higuchi Route," and it is said that between 4,000 and 20,000 Jews travelled to Shanghai via this route between 1938 and 1940. Later, Sugihara Chiune and Wang Kaewo rescued Jewish refugees to the Japanese concession in Shanghai. For this achievement, Higuchi's name was listed in the sixth "Golden Book" in 1941.”

(Record scratch sfx)

Wait, what? The racial supremacist Japanese (who we are told hate everyone and are constantly depicted as psycho fanatics who torture POWs and treat lesser races with disdain)... love the Jews.

We learn that Kaufman was living in Harbin and was the chairman of the Jewish Zionist organization of China. See Miles' paper on Natalie Wood for more on Harbin.

“Befriended by Imperial Japanese Army Colonel Yasue and General Kiichirō Higuchi, the engineers of the later-named “Fugu Plan”, Kaufman organized three large conferences of the Far Eastern Jewish Council, which brought together Jews from across East Asia, and successfully appealed for his organization to be accepted under the umbrella of the World Jewish Congress. Through these conferences, he worked to encourage Jews from other parts of the region, and the world, to think of Manchukuo as a safe-haven for Jews, reassuring them, as his Japanese friends had assured him, that the Japanese were not anti-Semitic, nor inclined to be racially discriminatory against Jews.”

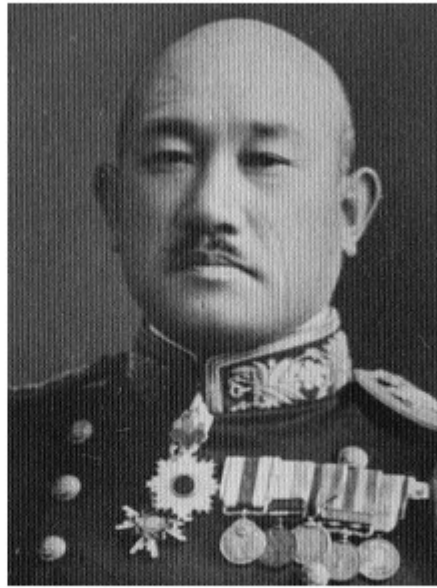

I had no idea that there was a Jewish colony in China in 1912. Let alone a World Jewish Congress meetings with Imperial Japan, co-operating with the Japanese to set up safe zones. It goes on:

Two...

Incredible. This is a colonisation program for Jews/Phoenicians to carve out land in otherwise ethnically homogenous China using Japanese troops as proxies. If Jewish soldiers landed and started building houses the Chinese would have kicked them out. Instead the Japanese do the hard work for them.

And three...

Here's two photos I could find of him:

I'm not sure why his left ear is pinned flat in one photo and sticks out in the second. Or why this is all we have of him online. Why only mugshots? Nothing of him addressing troops or parading or something? Miles: he has a big long Jewish nose for an Asian, don't he?

Anyway, all that is to say -- we've already established a strong Jewish link to the Far East, in terms of actual land possessed by them, large populations moving there, and intermarrying with the native population, so it shouldn't surprise us the Lees/Hos would be mixed up in that "broad milieu."

Back on track, looking at the Hos, we have: "businessman-philanthropists" (puke); Sirs (that's peerage, right?); bankers; and actors and actresses. The usual Phoenician roles, eh? Still waiting to find a coal-shoveler, hod-carrier, snow-plower, or ditch-digger in the lot, but nary a one yet! All in Hollywood, I guess.

Here's where my mind was blown. Ho. Do you know who the FIRST Ho was?

Robert Hotung.

Doesn't sound Chinese, does he?

Wait till you hear his whole name. Here's the link...

Sir Robert Ho Tung Bosman. Bosman. Is that Jewish? Check this dude out:

Sir Robert Ho Tung

Portrait of Sir Robert Ho Tung wearing his decorations

Born	Robert Ho Tung Bosman 22 December 1862 Hong Kong Island, British Hong Kong
Died	26 April 1956 (aged 93) British Hong Kong
Alma mater	Queen's College
Occupation	Merchant

If you scroll down, you see he was a merchant, and you've got some family connections to explore:

Spouse(s)	Margaret Maclean (m. 1881) Clara Cheung Lin-kok (m. 1895)
Children	12, including George
Parent(s)	Charles Henry Maurice Bosman (father) Sze Tai (mother)
Relatives	Ho Fook (brother) Eric Hotung (grandson) Joseph Hotung (grandson) Stanley Ho (grand-nephew) (grand-nephew)

Grandnephew a Stanley. Wife a McLean. And he doesn't look Asian at all. Ok, I whited out the bottom grand-nephew and will return to that shortly, since it's pretty mind-blowing.

But first, that Stanley Ho. He just died in 2020 and was a billionaire who had a monopoly on gambling in Macau, owning 19 casinos. His daughter now own MGM Macau and his son runs City of Dreams.

Also worth looking at that Ho Fook on the list above. He was another billionaire, and his wife was Lucy Rothwell, daughter of Thomas Rothwell of the peerage Rothwells. They are also FitzHerberts.

So the Jewish blood doubled again with her. Their five sons also became billionaires, running the Mercantile Bank of India, London and China; Sassoon & Co.; and the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, among many other companies.

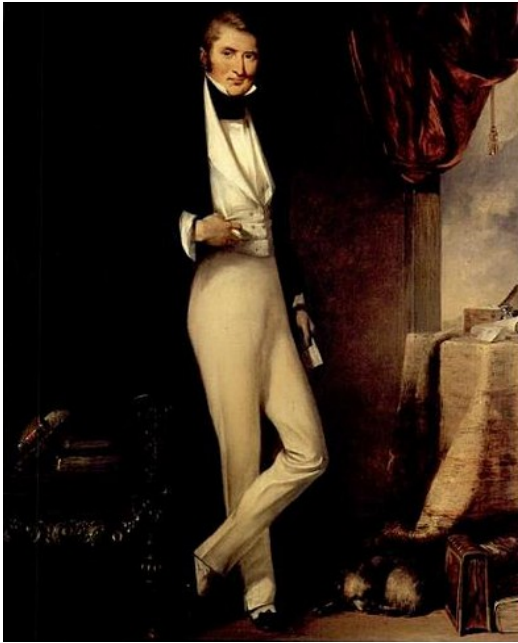

Reading what Wikipedia says about Robert Hotung...

"Ho Tung was Eurasian. His father, Charles Henry Maurice Bosman (1839–1892), was of Dutch Jewish ancestry, while his mother was Sze Tai (施娣), a Chinese woman of Poon (Bao'an) County (present-day Hong Kong and Shenzhen) heritage."

I don't think I need to elaborate on the Dutch-Jewish connections to East Asian trade, do I? Robert Ho's dad, Charles Henry Maurice Bosman, "was a merchant who owned Bosman and Co., was part-owner of the Hong Kong Hotel that opened in 1868, and was a director of the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company. By 1869, Charles Bosman was also the Dutch consul, running his own marine insurance business with important clients that included the British-owned trading conglomerate Jardine, Matheson & Co."

Bingo! Anyway, all that's to say, the Hos are Phoenicians from the Families, through and through.

That Jardine Matheson & Co is also worth pausing on. It too was run by the sons of Ho Fook and their ancestors still own and run it. But it was basically another British East India Company, started by Scotsmen Jardine and Matheson. William Jardine was a famous opium trader, and that is where the company comes from.

The Jardines were baronets of Applegirth, coming from the Douglasses through Lady Margaret Douglas, daughter of the 2nd Earl of Queensberry and Lady Margaret Stewart, daughter of the Earl of Traquair. This also links us closely to the Carnegies. Jardine Matheson & Co spun out of the existing opium dealer Magnaic & Co, with Hollingworth Magniac bringing the younger men in as partners. Magnaic's father was a French/Jewish goldsmith already involved in import from China, while Magnaic's mother was an Atwood. I trust you see the connection there to another paper hot off the presses: my paper on the fake Idaho murders, where we also saw the Atwoods. The lawyer there is an Atwood. Oh the tangled webs.

Sir James Sutherland Matheson, 1st Baronet, was obviously a Sutherland, linking him forward to Donald and Keifer. Thepeerage.com strangely scrubs him, failing to superlist him as a baronet and giving us no parents. However, we know he was related to the famous MacKenzies and Grants, and was a near cousin of the other baronet of that time, Sir Alexander Matheson. That allows us some more interesting links, since Sir Alexander married a MacLeod. I guess you remember who else is a MacLeod? Donald Trump. In the 20th century the Mathesons married with the Keppel earls, linking them to the Egerton and Montgomeries. Sir James Matheson went on to become the Governor of the Bank of England and the 2nd largest landowner in the UK, after the Queen. So you see how profitable this opium trade was. It was the Fentanyl of its time, and you will remember scenes from Sherlock Holmes of people wasting away in opium dens in central London. These were the guys that made it happen: close cousins of Bruce Lee.

I also thought this was notable:

"In Cantonese, Bosman was pronounced Bo-se-man, which transliterated into Cantonese to become Ho Sze Man." To my mind, this lends credence to Miles's intuitive-associative leap of connecting Li/Lee to Levy/Levi.

While it's often a fallacy -- one that makes my eyes boggle since it's so prevalent in the woo-woo conspiracy-sphere and because I spent a lot of my youth doing more legitimate etymological research for fun -- to "genetically" link every homophonous word, especially in unrelated languages, nevertheless ... sometimes it's correct, if your mind is working along the right lines. And mine is. Plus, Gore Vidal admitted Levy was changed to Lee in the lines of Jacqueline Bouvier.

So, in this case Bosman --> Ho Sze Man is just a Jewish name conforming to the dictates of the phonetic constraints of another language, just as Levy --> Lee/Li seems to be.

Of course, Robert's son, Joseph Hotung, naturally entered banking and other big-business ventures. Looks like he was a trustee of the Museum of Modern Art (which I'm sure endears him to Miles) and was knighted by Queen Elizabeth in 1993.

Who was Phoenician Pseudo-Chinese Bosman's great-nephew?

Relatives	Ho Fook (brother)
	Eric Hotung (grandson)
	Joseph Hotung (grandson)
	Stanley Ho (grand-nephew)
	Bruce Lee (grand-nephew)

Yep. Bruce Lee. The famous Bruce Lee.

Notably, Bruce's dad was a Lee (Levy/Levi) and a famous performer (Cantonese Opera, which I guess is as close as they had to Hollywood in China for a hungry Lee in those days), and his mom -- the Ho -- was Grace Ho, whose uncle was Robert Hotung.

"Grace Ho was born in 1907 in Shanghai to Cheung King-sin (張瓊仙), a European woman who was Ho Kom-tong's (何甘棠) mistress in Shanghai. Ho Kom-tong was a prominent businessman who had 12 wives and reportedly more than 30 children. Ho Kom-tong was also the younger maternal half-brother of Hong Kong businessman and philanthropist Robert Hotung. Ho eventually adopted Grace."

So Bruce Lee is Phoenician through-and-through, which -- not to detract from his real charm, charisma, and talent -- does account nicely for his big-time success in both Hong Kong and Hollywood cinema, and does make one wonder if both he and his son Brandon faked their deaths.

In retrospect, all the mystifying and mythologizing around that, if you've followed the Lees -- their sudden, unexpected deaths and their similarities -- now reads more like fiction than anything else. Maybe they both got sick of the limelight and decided to retire early?

You might draw a parallel to the "numerology" of Lincoln and Kennedy: sold as "mystical," but really a function of Phoenician theater and its insufferable, interminable inside-jokes.

By the way, here's Bruce with Mom and Dad:

Mom definitely doesn't look Chinese, though she may have a Habsburg jaw. He has a very long face, and looks at best 1/2 Chinese.

Oh, and again by the way -- those Lis? The Big Four of Hong Kong? The top guy on the list I shared above, Li Shek-Pang? Turns out they're a banking dynasty. Here's what Wikipedia says:

"The Li family are a banking dynasty in Hong Kong and associated with the Bank of East Asia, although its family members have held positions in various other businesses, as well as the Hong Kong Government, the Hong Kong Judiciary, and the Hong Kong Legislative Council. While the Li family spans many generations and has many members, this page only includes those who were directly involved with the running of the Bank of East Asia. The "first generation" refers to the generation that founded the Bank.

"Despite holding a minority stake in the Bank of East Asia, the Li family has been able to retain direct management control of the bank since 1918 through complex holding structures."

Yeah, I bet they have. So, the Lis/Lees and Hos of Hong Kong are big-time Phoenician bankers, and looks like Bruce is a Phoenician baby from both those families.

Alexander Rudolph Forbes (Alec) Bosman

Also Known As: "Alec"
Birthdate: October 11, 1878
Death: 1954 (75-76)
Immediate Family: Son of Charles Henry Maurice Bosman and Mary Agnes Bosman
Husband of Gladys Bosman
Father of Private
Brother of Irene Maud Bosman; Bertram Stanley Bosman; Harold Ralph Forbes Bosman and Charles Henry M Bosman, Jr.
Half brother of Sir Robert Hotung 何東; HO Fook 何福; 何柏頤 HO Pak Ngan; Kai Moon Ho and 何啟佳 Walter Bosman

Managed by: Christine Marcella DeVillier - L...
Last Updated: April 27, 2022

Let's also take a look at Bruce's wife, Linda. She fell to this analysis very fast as well. I didn't know whether to laugh or shout, and it crossed my mind, "This must be what it felt like for Miles when he started finding this stuff out," and, "Now I know how he goes so deep into the genealogy – it's compelling once you find a lead." I started by deciding to look up \(Sir\) Robert Hotung on Geni. He is listed as half-brother of Alexander Rudolph Forbes (Alec) Bosman. Robert's dad, Charles Henry Maurice Bosman, had Alexander with wife Mary Agnes Bosman. Christina Marcella DeVillier manages this page, too.

Born October 11, aces and eights.

Going back to Robert Hotung's dad, Charles Henry Maurice Bosman...

Charles Henri Maurice Bosman

Chinese: 何仕文

Also Known As: "Mozes Hartog"
Birthdate: August 29, 1839
Birthplace: Rotterdam, South Holland, Netherlands
Death: November 10, 1892 (53)
City of London, Greater London, UK
Immediate Family: Son of Hartog Mozes Bosman and Anna Samson de Vries
Husband of Mary Agnes Bosman and Tai SHI
Father of Alexander Rudolph Forbes \(Alec\) Bosman; Irene Maud Bosman; Bertram Stanley Bosman; Harold Ralph Forbes Bosman; Charles Henry M Bosman, Jr. and 5 others
Brother of Jansje Bosman; Annetje/Antoinette Bosman; Stillborn Bosman and Sophia Bosman
Half brother of Louisa Pollux and Betsij Pollux

Managed by: Christine Marcella DeVillier - L...
Last Updated: April 28, 2022

AKA "Mozes Hartog"?! Son of Hartog Mozes Bosman and Anna Samson de Vries?? So, we have Jewish names, while Vries is in the Peerage. They are all East India Company bigwigs. Anyway, taking Hotung's paternal grandfather's line back, we have the following names: Levie, Levij, Simons [makes me think of Paul and Carly Simon], Izaak, and we get stuck around 1690, all around Rotterdam in the Netherlands. Hartog Mozes Bosman's mom, in particular, Antje Hartog Van Straaten... her maternal grandmother is Rebecca Lavino – more Levis? Her mom's mom's family were Isaacs. All in the family.

Bruce Lee's wife was born Linda Emery, to Vivian Hester and Everett Emery. Her Wikipedia page says she met Bruce while attending Garfield High School in Seattle. It was founded in 1920, and in "its early decades, the school was noted for its Jewish, Japanese and Italian populations."

Wikipedia notes, interestingly, that "[n]otable people who have spoken at Garfield include Martin Luther King Jr. and Jesse Jackson. Civil rights activist Stokely Carmichael spoke at the school in 1967. Future President Barack Obama gave a speech in 2006 regarding "Innovation in Education".

Also goofy whiteboy rapper Macklemore (who, believe it or not, popped into my head for some reason a few hours ago -- I take that as a good sign that I'm on the right track).

Jack A. Benaroya (Jewish, venture capitalist, real estate developer, early investor in Starbucks).

Jimi Hendrix (whom Miles has hit here).

Irvine Robbins (Jewish), co-founder of Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream.

Omari Salisbury, journalist, who apparently was "covering the first day of protests in Seattle in reaction to the murder of George Floyd" [ho, boy, here it comes] when, "in the ensuing chaos" he got pepper-sprayed [sure he did], which apparently "was the start of Salisbury's company, Converge Media [ah, ok. marketing the start-up], covering the protests through thorough summaries on their morning show The Morning Update Show streamed on Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube [wow, all that right away, huh? think he's related to the Families?] as well as hours of livestreams of nightly protest events, rallies, and the day-to-day events of what became the Capitol Hill Occupied Protest (CHOP)."

Sounds staged to me, just like the murder of Floyd, so -- Garfield H.S. is looking more suspicious, which makes me feel there's more to Linda.

Ari Naftali Melber (Jewish), attorney, "journalist," and chief legal correspondent for MSNBC.

Quincy Jones, who -- coincidentally? -- was married to a Jeri Caldwell (Cadwell???)...

Anyway, Geni wasn't so helpful when I searched Linda's various names, but according to Geneanet (which does scrub her mother's line, just as Geni scrubs her altogether), Linda's father comes from Vernons [Mt. Vernon?], Bentleys [isn't that supposed to be the most expensive luxury car out there?] Calligans, Whitcombs, and Hindmans.

Linda's mom is listed there as Vivian Pryme Hester. As in Hester Prynne.

Taking that name back to Geni, she's listed there as Vivian Pryme Dickinson (Emery)(Hester), daughter of Everett Milton Hester and Clara J Hester.

Everett is the son of Ebenezer Hester and Elizabeth Hester. Elizabeth Hester, born 1838 in York, England, is a Hemmingway! Now, Ebenezer's the son of Edward Hester and Elizabeth Wallington Rolles. [When I saw that name, I immediately thought, "Rolls Royce." Remember that when you see what I found below.]

I'm going to include pictures, for posterity and to save myself time typing. Plus, look at the mugs on 'em.

Edward Hester

Birthdate: March 15, 1789
Death: April 15, 1870 (81)
Immediate Family: Husband of Elizabeth Wallington Rolles
Father of Ebenezer Hester
Managed by: René Robert G S
Last Updated: October 2, 2022

Elizabeth Wallington Rolles

Birthdate: February 08, 1794
Death: July 23, 1871 (77)
Immediate Family: Wife of Edward Hester
Mother of Ebenezer Hester
Managed by: René Robert G S
Last Updated: October 2, 2022

Rolles was born 8 February 1794, Buckinghamshire, England. Father was Samuel Line, mother Mary Roles. Elizabeth had at least 7 daughters and 7 sons. Died 23 July 1871 in Hartford, Connecticut.

Roles, Rolles, Rolls. We've seen variant spellings on peerage and Phoenician names. The Rolls family have a Wikipedia page.

"The Rolls family were substantial landowners and benefactors in and around Monmouth in south-east Wales. The ascent of the family to the aristocracy was through marriage. [The usual

Phoenician story, eh?] A prominent member of the family was Charles Stewart Rolls, who co-founded the Rolls-Royce car manufacturing company.

This is where my head started to spin, and that's not even the best part. I couldn't believe Linda really came from The Families, but -- it made sense, given what I learned from Miles and given my intuition.

"The Rolls family of Monmouth derive from John Rolls (1735–1801), son of Aaron and Elizabeth Rolls, the Grange, Bermondsey, and of the Hendre, Monmouthshire, High Sheriff of Monmouthshire in 1794. Much of his property in both Monmouthshire and London came through his marriage to Sarah Coysh (d. 1801), heiress of her brother Richard. John Rolls died the day after his wife."

Let's see what's up with Sarah Coysh. I've never seen that last name. She has a coat of arms, and this made me laugh, since I really knew I was on the right track.

"Eagle." Right. Looks like a Phoenix rising from the ashes.

I wanted to know what's up with our Rolls who was also a Stewart, since Miles has talked about how important the Stewarts have been in the skullduggery he's researched.

I mean Charles Stewart Rolls.

"Charles Stewart Rolls FRGS FRMetS MICE (27 August 1877 – 12 July 1910) was a British motoring and aviation pioneer. With Henry Royce, he co-founded the Rolls-Royce car manufacturing firm. He was the first Briton to be killed in an aeronautical accident with a powered aircraft, when the tail of his Wright Flyer broke off during a flying display in Bournemouth. He was aged 32."

Yeah, right. Bet he faked his death, too.

Rolls was born in Berkeley Square, London, third son of the 1st Baron Llangattock and Lady Llangattock. Sounds Welsh. His dad, John Rolls, 1st Baron Llangattock, was the "only son of John Etherington Welch Rolls and his wife Elizabeth Mary Long. Elizabeth was a daughter of Walter Long of Preshaw and granddaughter of William Carnegie, 7th Earl of Northesk."

I got the impression from her Wikipedia page that Linda Lee was just a plain-jane, googly-eyed schoolgirl at Local American High School who just happened to meet Charming, Definitely-Not-Jewish, Chinese Stranger doing random martial arts exhibition for local oafs?

Let's look this John Rolls' wife.

"Georgiana, Lady Llangattock, (28 February 1837 (baptised) – 1 April 1923), born Georgiana Marcia Maclean [like the place in Virginia??] and after her marriage termed Georgiana Marcia Rolls, was a socialite, benefactor and an enthusiast for Horatio Nelson and associated naval heroes. [Of course she was!] She was the wife of John Rolls, 1st Baron Llangattock, a Victorian landowner, Member of Parliament and agriculturalist."

Now, Georgiana was the daughter of Sir Charles Maclean, 9th Baronet of Morvaren and Emily Eleanor (born Marsham).

Here's her mom Emily Marsham's Geni page.

Emily Eleanor Marsham

Birthdate:	February 10, 1803
Death:	April 12, 1838 (35)
Immediate Family:	Daughter of Rev Canon Jacob Bullock-Marsham and Amelia Frances Bullock-Marsham Wife of Sir Charles Fitzroy Maclean, 9th Baronet Mother of Sir Fitzroy Donald Maclean, 10th Baronet ; Georgiana Marcia Rolls ; Louisa Marianne Maclean and Fanny Henrietta Maclean Sister of Robert Bullock-Marsham and Louisa Charlotte Marsham

Oho! Bullocks? So, Sandra's Linda's cousin now, huh? haha.

So, Emily's brother is Robert Bullock-Marsham...

Robert Marsham, 1st Baron Romney

Birthdate:	September 17, 1685
Birthplace:	Romney,, New Romney, Kent, England, United Kingdom
Death:	November 28, 1724 (39)
Immediate Family:	Son of Sir Robert Marsham, 4th Baronet Marsham and Margaretta Marsham Husband of Elizabeth Shovell Father of Elizabeth Viscountess de Bouverie ; Robert Marsham, 2nd Baron Romney ; John Marsham and Shovel Marsham Brother of Mary Hales and Elizabeth Palmer

1st Baron Romney? You mean, like Mitt, Mormon creep and business-goon?

What about Marsham's wife, Elizabeth Shovell?

Elizabeth Shovell

Birthdate:	November 02, 1692
Birthplace:	Goodmans Fields, Middlesex,, Greater London, England, United Kingdom
Death:	November 17, 1750 (58) Hague, Warren,, Warren County, NY, United States
Immediate Family:	Daughter of Admiral. Sir Cloudesley Shovell and Lady Elizabeth Shovell Wife of Robert Marsham, 1st Baron Romney and John Carmichael, 4th Lord Carmichael and 3rd Earl of Hyndford Mother of Elizabeth Viscountess de Bouverie ; Robert Marsham, 2nd Baron Romney ; John Marsham ; Shovel Marsham and Hon Frederick Carmichael Sister of Ann Shovell ; Cloudesley Shovel and Anne Blackwood Half sister of Sir John Narborough, 1st Baronet ; James Narborough, Esq. ; Elizabeth D'Aeth, Baroness ; Isaac Narborough and Cloudesly Narborough
Managed by:	Hon Julia Cokayne
Last Updated:	April 30, 2022

Who's Admiral Sir Cloudesley Shovell?

Admiral. Sir Cloudesley Shovell

← Back to Shovell surname

Sir Cloudesley Shovell

Birthdate:	November 1650
Birthplace:	Crayford Kent, Dartford, Greater London, England, United Kingdom
Death:	October 23, 1707 (56) MP Rochester Kent, United Kingdom
Immediate Family:	Son of John Shovell and Anne Jenkinson Husband of Lady Elizabeth Shovell Father of Ann Shovell ; Elizabeth Shovell ; Cloudesley Shovel and Anne Blackwood Half brother of Anne Flaxman
Occupation:	Admiral of the Fleet
Managed by:	Private User
Last Updated:	April 27, 2022

Wikipedia says, "Born in Cockthorpe, the son of John Shovell, a Norfolk gentleman, and Anne Shovell (née Jenkinson), Shovell was born into a family "of property and distinction" which, although not poor, was by no means wealthy."

On the one hand, I was (and am) riveted by what I keep uncovering and I know there's so much here [sounds like someone is becoming a big fan of history]; on the other hand, I come back to Thoreau: when you're acquainted with the principle, you don't need 1000 examples.

I'll just share one more thing along this line before moving on.

Lord Mayor John Briggs Marsham

Birthdate:	1446
Birthplace:	Stratton Strawless, Buxton, Norfolk, England, United Kingdom
Death:	May 13, 1525 (78-79) Norwich, Norfolk, England, United Kingdom 📅
Immediate Family:	Son of Sir John Spurlinge Marsham and Ellyne Marsham Husband of Elizabeth Marsham Father of Ralph Marsham ; Elizabeth Layer and Mary York Stanley 📅
Occupation:	Lord Mayor
Managed by:	Jason Scott Wills
Last Updated:	May 2, 2022

So, now we're in the 1400s. Note the Stanley in there. Miles said they show up in every paper, and there they are.

Take the father's line back far enough, and you get this guy, Thomas De Marsham.

Thomas De Marsham

Birthdate: circa 1078
Death: circa 1103 (16-34)
Immediate Family: Father of Richard Marsham
Managed by: Devon Sinclair Wise
Last Updated: February 27, 2015

Now we're going back 1000 years, and "De" implies nobility, doesn't it?

I think if we go far back enough, we'll see Linda Lee Emery Cadwell is Phoenician through-and-through. I'm waiting, like, to see her likeness carved in bas-relief on some 10,000 year old archaeological find. And you forgot to mention that Cadwell is short for Cadwalladr.

400 23rd Avenue Seattle, Washington 98122 United States
Information
Type	Public
Established	1920
Principal	Dr. Tarance Hart
Faculty	81.30 (FTE) ^[1]
Grades	9-12
Enrollment	1,633 (2020-21) ^[1]
Student to teacher ratio	21.87 ^[1]
Color(s)	Purple & White
Mascot	Bulldogs
Newspaper	The Messenger
Website	Garfield High School

I was thinking a bit more about Linda Lee, so I went back to her Wikipedia page, and then to the Garfield H.S. Page. Note the school colors! And not the bull, as in El/Ba'al, but the bulldogs.

Also, guess who's another notable alumnus of Garfield? Minoru Yamasaki, designer of the World Trade Center. Haha. And look what else he designed!

	Yamasaki in 1959
Born	December 1, 1912 Seattle, Washington, US
Died	February 6, 1986 (aged 73) Detroit, Michigan, US
Alma mater	University of Washington New York University
Occupation	Architect
Spouses	Teruko Hirashiki (m. 1941; div. 1961) Peggy Watty (m. 1961; div. 1963) Teruko Hirashiki (m. 1969)
Children	3, including documentary photographer Taro Yamasaki
Buildings	Pruitt-Igoe, 1954 (demolished) Pacific Science Center, 1962 World Trade Center, 1973 (destroyed) Rainier Tower, 1977 Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, 1978 Torre Picasso, 1988

Yeah, that's right -- Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. Check out who he worked for.

"In part to escape anti-Japanese prejudice, he moved to Manhattan in 1934, with $40 and no job prospects. [Just a down-on-his luck pauper, as usual. Note the move to New York.] He wrapped dishes for an importing company until he found work as a draftsman and engineer. [I have visions of him with threadbare clothes and a Little Rascals cap, mingling with the hoi polloi in the grimy fish-market.] He enrolled at New York University for a master's degree in architecture and got a job with the architecture firm Shreve, Lamb & Harmon, designers of the Empire State Building. The firm helped Yamasaki avoid internment as a Japanese-American during World War II, and he himself sheltered his parents in New York City. [8]"

How convenient that he worked for such an important firm and also managed to avoid internment. Anyway, after leaving that firm, he "worked briefly for Harrison & Abramovitz and Raymond Loewy. Lowey=Levy. During his time with Harrison & Abramovitz, Yamasaki, a gifted watercolors painter, moonlighted teaching drawing at Columbia University."

I'm starting to think, given the odds and given what Miles has shared on his site, that Bruce was probably gay and faked his death. I searched a couple terms: "bruce lee faked his death" and "bruce lee gay." Check this out. Daily Mail UK, so -- just as good a mainstream source as Wikipedia, in terms of a place to look for lies to unravel. The link name includes the phrase, "Bruce Lee womanizer got circumcised American."

So, one, they're selling him as a ladies' man, and two, they're claiming he got circumcised to be more... American? I assume if he was circumcised at all, it was as an infant and in conformity with the traditions of his ancestors the Bosmans, Isaacs, Simons, Levys, etc., not because, as an adult, he wanted to "fit in" in America. I don't know that a lot of adults voluntarily get circumcised. So, that's just to signal he's Jewish, with a wink and a nod.

Note also that Bruce is said to have died at 32, just like Linda's Rolls-Royce ancestor, Charles Stewart Rolls.

Note also that it was supposedly while visiting his "mistress" that he died. Play-boy! Gettin' too hot and heavy, I'm sure.

The article says Bruce turned actress Sharon Ferrell inside out because he knew her body so well. Ew. Methinks the lady embellisheth too much.

"But it wasn't hard to see why the star was such a ladies' man; Lee had the body of an 18-year-old when he was 32." Sounds like this article was marketing for Matthew Polly's book-release -- Bruce Lee: A Life.

Side-note, Polly went to Princeton, and claims to have spent 2 years at the Shaolin Temple, becoming the first American to be accepted as a disciple, developing an "iron forearm" impervious to pain [yeah right], and then he made a career out of publishing books about martial arts.

Interestingly, Wikipedia says, "Writing in Master-Insight, Feng Yingbiao criticized the book for promoting a "Eurocentric" worldview and a lack of fact-checking, particularly criticizing Polly's allegation in the book that Lee was of Jewish ancestry."

Sorry, Boo, I already proved Bruce is Jewish. Get with it.

Switching gears, I remembered Miles hit Once Upon a Time in Hollywood here.

The scenes with Bruce Lee are another reveal, telling us Lee was as fake as the rest of them. Not really surprising, though it IS surprising they are choosing to reveal it so conspicuously. Could be because many of the producers involved here are Chinese, so perhaps there is some rivalry between these Lees and Chans and Dongs we don't know about.

Keeping that in mind, and what I've been uncovering... check this out. According to this article, "In 1964, Lee was invited to give a martial arts exhibition at the Long Beach International Karate Championships, according to the South China Morning Post. Hollywood hair stylist Jay Sebring attended the event and was one of many who was in awe of the feats Lee accomplished there. Sebring's star clients included Steve McQueen, [note from above that Lee and McQueen were tight and it was apparently through him that Lee met Farrell] Frank Sinatra, and Warren Beatty, as described by Vanity Fair. Sebring also had an interest in martial arts, and he and Lee became friends. The article says Sebring "helped Lee catch Hollywood's attention," getting him a pilot which led to his breakout role as Kato in Green Hornet.

"Lee's connections within celebrity circles continued to expand. He was hired as a technical director for the 1968 spy comedy The Wrecking Crew, starring Sharon Tate and Dean Martin. Tate was Sebring's ex-girlfriend, but the two remained close friends. The fledgling starlet underwent intensive martial arts training under Lee, which was depicted in a brief scene in Once Upon A Time ... In Hollywood. Tate and Lee became friends, and she introduced him to her husband, director Roman Polanski. According to Esquire, Lee would become Polanski's personal kung fu instructor."

That's all I need to know.

Lee was an Intelligence project, as you'd expect given his lineage and (beard?) marriage.

Comically, the article claims Polanski suspected Lee as the murderer, because "Bruce was the only person [Polanski] knew personally who had the physical skills to hurt a bunch of people at once. Bruce was the toughest guy he knew, and Bruce knew weapons."

Yeah. Anyway, there are pictures of Lee's open casket, as well as controversy over it -- namely, most people say the video and pictures don't match, and it doesn't look like Bruce.

I'll leave these here for now.

Lee, the floating head. With the wrong hair part, the wrong eyebrows, the wrong mouth, the wrong nose and the wrong chin. And that guy has a scar Lee doesn't have.

Lee Fat Neck.

We can trust History.com as a mainstream propaganda source on the subject. Note that the article's by Matthew Polly -- I keep seeing articles by him coming up on this subject. He must've done a full PR blitz for his book release; and now, I find out director Ang Lee, son Mason Lee, and Bruce's daughter Sharon are collaborating on an upcoming biopic of Bruce.

The prevailing story about Bruce's death is that he was hanging out with his "mistress," complained of a headache, and she gave him her pain meds, which had aspirin as an ingredient. This caused cerebral edema due to Bruce's allergy to aspirin, then he died.

The article notes that for "45 years, fans, experts and forensic pathologists have offered different theories [on Bruce's death], ranging from the supernatural (killed by an ancient curse or bad feng shui) to the ridiculous (poisoned by Japanese ninjas). Conspiracy theorists blamed his luckless mistress, painting her as a sinister black widow."

So, the usual muddying of the waters with nonsense. Polly also notes that in Hong Kong, where Bruce died, initially director Raymond Chow (with Bruce at the time, according to the story) told the media Bruce died at home with wife Linda.

Then "an intrepid reporter" [come on] uncovered "the truth," and more rumors circulated... "stories about him dying from an overdose, dying from screwing too much, dying with an erection, dying from being hacked to death by young thugs, poisoned by his servant. There was one story that he wasn't really dead."

Interesting that that's the last explanation, added on as an afterthought, as if it were the least credible.

Doubly interesting, as the article begins with...

"Of all the international pop-culture icons who met an untimely death--like Marilyn Monroe, Elvis Presley or Michael Jackson--Bruce Lee is perhaps the only one for whom there is no official consensus as to the cause."

We saw Polly selling the Manson-Tate story as real earlier, and now he's selling Monroe and Presley's deaths as real, which Miles covered here and here. That is, he outed them both as phonies, and as having faked their deaths.

Interesting that Polly was doing his writing around when Once Upon a Time in Hollywood was released. Also interesting that -- long story short -- Polly concludes this series of speculations with a new one, namely that, several months before his alleged death, Bruce had "had an operation to remove the sweat glands from his armpits, because he thought dank pits looked bad on-screen."

For real?

So, then it was hot in Hong Kong, he couldn't sweat, was dehydrated, the pain killer exacerbated it, and he died. Apparently that's a thing, but... given everything else we've seen, I call B.S.

One last note, since I'm tired of this. According to his Wikipedia page, Bruce's son Brandon is said to have died March 31st, 1993, at 1:03 pm. Remember that Bruce is said to have died at 11:30. Lot's of 3's and 1's there. This page notes that both father and son "died" before finishing their last films (Game of Death, haw haw, and The Crow, respectively), and in the former, Bruce's character receives a fatal gunshot wound, while in the latter, Brandon is said to have died of a gunshot wound to the belly, via a prop-gun loaded with a blank "improvised" from a live bullet.

Whatever. They were so strapped for time and cash on set that they couldn't be bothered to follow the normal safety protocols, instead jerry-rigging some dangerous-ass semi-live ammunition? Just like Alec Baldwin. Elsewhere, we read Brandon was engaged to Eliza Hutton, and was to be married to her two weeks after his "death," in Mexico. He was supposedly killed filming the last scenes of The Crow.

Sounds to me like he faked his death before moving to Mexico with Eliza -- much as Miles pointed out how Bruce Lee's friend, Sharon Tate, played along with the Manson-theater so she could retire and have her baby in peace in another country.

If you look up Hutton, it's noted that she "kept a low profile" after Brandon's death, and that she's remained close to Sharon and Linda Lee, who to this day consider her part of the family.

And, last, Brandon is noted to have waxed poetic, and publicly, about the transience of life and its preciousness before his "death," so -- it all adds up to me and my gut, which is glutted with this nonsense.

It's interesting, too, that no matter how hard I look, I can't seem to find anything anywhere on Eliza's parents. I'm guessing that's not her real name.

She is said to have been born 9 February 1964 in, Kansas City, Missouri, and one source claims her dad was a politician, though I haven't found any concrete leads.

One more thought occurred, with respect to Brandon faking his death to go be with his soon-to-be wife. Just speculation, but I'm sharing it. I remember reading these last few days, like recounted here, that Brandon and Brad Pitt were partying (getting drunk and stoned) in 1992, a year before Brandon's alleged death. Brad notes that he and Brandon "We went out one night and everyone else had peeled off, and we ended up back at his place and it was like six in the morning. A real, you know, drunk and stony night, and he proceeded that night to tell me how he thought he was going to die young like his dad. And I chalked it up to, you know, stony 6 am talk. Then he got The Crow the next year."

What occurred to me is, interesting how Brad Pitt beats up Bruce Lee in Once Upon a Time In Hollywood, isn't it -- from this different angle of being Brandon's friend?

And the more speculative angle is... I think Miles makes a good case for Brad being gay.

I wonder what he and Brandon were doing alone at Brandon's place, chatting intimately at 6am?

So, maybe Brandon was also a gay Jewish actor who faked his own death, and left instead to live Out and Proud somewhere else, away from prying eyes. Some of the articles I read about Eliza note that she's been single a long time, devoting herself to charitable causes. So, maybe she was a cousin serving as a beard for a while.

Anyway. You can watch video of Brandon, and no disrespect, but he comes across a little sweet. Nothing wrong with that, but it does fit our title here.